

January 27, 2011 Friends Author Luncheon

Charlotte Williamson is a former Cobb County Sheriff's Department deputy sheriff. "I didn't start out to be a writer. It just sort of evolved," Charlotte Williamson notes. She had always kept a journal and thought about maybe writing a novel one day, but work, life in general, plus raising a family, always took precedent. Her college courses of accounting and computers led her to accept jobs in major corporations, a position which she held for a number of years. At forty-two, she undertook the arduous task of training for Deputy Sheriff.

Fascination with her job inspired her to go back to college and study Criminal Justice, and would later provide the foundation for her first novel, Switched. Retired now, and living with her husband in southwest Florida, she concentrates on traveling, boating, camping, and, of course, writing. Her travels have taken her from Hawaii to Western Europe and from Canada to Mexico. Her second novel, Say Aloha to Murder also features Hopewell, Virginia police Detective James Hardrock.

<http://www.charlottesmysteries.com/>